Inter Boys Week 8- 2017

We say goodbye to our friends

As our final week of the 2017 Kenwal Day Camp season comes to an end, the Inter Boys division has had a chance to look back on our summer with smiles on our faces as we remember our new and old friends, favorite counselors, and best activities. We all congratulated the boys who participated in the drama performance of Madagascar on Wednesday. But, really, this week was one in which we slowed down after the craziness of the past few weeks. We got back into our normal schedule where the boys had one last opportunity to juggle at circus arts, take on the super slide at water park, compete in a busy game of gaga or paddleball, devour a delectable creation at edible arts, play an arcade game with their buddies, or just revel in their newfound or improved swimming abilities. It was a truly nice way to wrap up the summer.

Parents - I want to thank you for sharing your children with us here at camp. It is the boys themselves who make this experience special for one another. I am so proud to have witnessed the growth and development of this group. In addition to the fun that is naturally embedded in the activities offered here at camp, we have tried to instill a sense of character, morals, and sportsmanship in the boys. I can honestly say that I've seen a positive change in the spirit and attitude of this group in the last eight weeks. They will surely be missed.

On a personal note, I want you to know that 20 years ago, when I was a college aged camp counselor, I told myself that when I had kids of my own, I was going to find a camp to work at as a group leader where my children could go to swim, make friends, and just have fun being kids on Long Island. I am so happy to have found Kenwal Day Camp as the place to fulfill my goal. From the directors to the group leaders to the counselors to the specialists to the maintenance crew, there is a huge staff of people who work hard and have fun giving your children the greatest experience they can have. As a father, I couldn't imagine a better place for my children to be. As a teacher, I am so proud of the accomplishments your sons have made during this fun-filled summer. As a group leader, I wish all of the boys a successful school year and sincerely hope to see them back next summer when they return as the Senior Boys division.

-Your Group Leader, Chris Monaco
